Artefacts, for example, can bring us closer to people through touching what they felt, feeling their shoes, clothes etc.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Encouraging pupils to comment on moral questions and dilemmas from the past.</li> <li>Events and beliefs in the past will often be at odds with what we would consider unacceptable today (and were to some people in the past also).</li> <li>Helping children to empathise with the decisions which ordinary people made at the time, based on their historical situation.</li> <li>Notions of right and wrong are explored in connection with events from the past, linking with the value of justice.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>History supports social development by exploring the similarities and contrasts between past and present societies.</li> <li>Encouraging pupils to think about what past societies have contributed to our culture today.</li> <li>Pupils will also be encouraged to build up their own social development through collaborative and team working activities.</li> <li>The study of social issues is a common theme in History lessons.</li> <li>Be made aware of how, in the main, we are very fortunate to live in 'the modern world'.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Developing a better understanding of our multicultural society through studying links between local, British, European and world history.</li> <li>Gaining an understanding of and empathy with, people from different cultural backgrounds.</li> <li>Examining how other cultures have had a major impact on the development of 'British' culture.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>We aim to promote British values through History. British values, including those of democracy, the rule of law, individual liberty and mutual respect and tolerance of those with different faiths and beliefs are embedded in the History curriculum.</li> <li>Students explore issues such as democracy in their historical context and relate them to the modern day through studying periods such as Ancient Greece. This enables the students to understand how, over time, changes happened and to evaluate their impact.</li> <li>By looking at the achievements of famous black Britons, students develop an awareness of how they have influenced and shaped the country in which we live. This includes an appreciation of their work.</li> <li>Teaching students to respect and value diversity is encouraged in the day to day teaching and learning through showing respect for different viewpoints and ideas as well as in the ability to work effectively together both individually and in groups.</li> </ul>
